TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE OF PRIVY COUNCIL FOR TRADE.

My Lords,

In accordance with the plan submitted by me, and approved by your Lordships, for a re-arrangement of the Annual Accounts of the Trade and Navigation of the United Kingdom, I have the honour to lay before your Lordships a Volume containing the Accounts for the Year 1853; and beg to offer some necessary explanations respecting the difference between the present Volume and the Board of Trade Annual Tables hitherto published.

The Tables, as at first compiled, under the able superintendence of the late Mr. Porter, referred to a variety of subjects, comprising the Population, Revenue, Commerce, &c., of the United Kingdom; to which, for some years, were added Returns relating to our Colonies and Foreign Countries.

The chief Tables of Imports and Exports were known as the "Courtenay" Accounts, and were first published in the year 1832. The large expansion of our Commerce since that time, and especially within the last few years, necessarily required considerable alterations and additions in the Returns of Import and Export.

The Shipping Returns also required amendment to bring them more in accordance with our extended Navigation.

With a view to the improvement of the Commercial Accounts, I had to consider the form as well as the subject matter, and after mature reflection upon the advantages and disadvantages of retaining a form which had been in use for several years, and with which many persons are of course familiar, I proposed to your Lordships a different arrangement of the Accounts in form, as well as an enlargement in substance.

The Forms adopted in the present volume are similar, in general arrangement, to the Commercial Tables of several Foreign Countries.

The re-arrangement of the Trade and Navigation Accounts renders advisable the separate publication of the principal divisions of the original volume. The Foreign Statistics have already appeared in a separate Volume; and the Trade and Navigation Accounts, the Miscellaneous Statistics, and the Colonial Statistics, will, under a new and enlarged arrangement, separately form sufficiently large volumes. The division of the Volume will also promote earlier publication.

The Form of the "Courtenay" Accounts contained the names of the Articles, in line, at the head of the page, and the names of the Countries, in column, at the side of the page. To trace an Article, from or to a particular Country, in Imports or Exports, the page must be searched in two directions, and according to the distance of the figures from the names of the Countries and of the articles, so was the difficulty of finding the corresponding figures to the one and the other.

In the present Form of account the Articles and Countries are placed in juxta position, so that on finding the one the other is also immediately under the eye, and the figures stand opposite the Countries.

The information contained in the old and new Tables may be thus described:

Import Accounts.—Of these there were two in the old Volume. The "Courtenay" exhibited the Articles from each Country, and the Total Entries for Consumption. The other, which stood nearer the beginning of the book, showed the Articles apart from the Countries, with the Rates and Amount of Duty.

The New Accounts unite in one form of Table the information of the two old Accounts, showing the Articles, Entries for Home Consumption, and the Amount of Duty opposite each Country, also the Rates of Duty, and when Imposed. Columns have been added to distinguish the quantities of each Article carried in British and Foreign Vessels respectively. This detail is interesting and useful, as it marks the relative employment of British and Foreign Vessels carrying the several articles to this country.

The Official is the only Value of Imports that can at present be given, but as it affords no criterion of the actual worth of an article, and is only useful in comparative accounts, that valuation is not introduced. A column, headed Real Value, is given in the principal Import Account, to show with what particulars it would be desirable to furnish the Account, and an endeavour is now being made at the Custom House to obtain a calculated Real Value of Imports.

Export Accounts.—There were two "Courtenay" Accounts for the Quantities of Foreign and Colonial Merchandise, and the Quantities and Declared Value of British and Irish Produce respectively.

The New Accounts present the two descriptions of Export in the same account, and distinguish, for British Produce, the employment of British and Foreign Vessels. Although there may be several instances in which an article is of Foreign produce only, and only occupies with figures one of the columns on the page, I think it will prove a better arrangement to have all the articles of Export enumerated alphabetically in one account than in separate accounts for Foreign and British produce. In some instances an article exhibits both British and Foreign produce, in which case a single account is certainly more convenient.

Shipping Accounts.—These accounts in the old Volume were limited to a few separate tables, and when of a similar nature, as in the instance of the principal ports, they differed in detail.

The new Accounts, in the Entries and Clearances from and to the various Countries, distinguish the Vessels with Cargoes and in Ballast, and exhibit the part taken in the intercourse with the several Countries by the Vessels of such Countries, apart from other Foreign and British Vessels. In the Tables for each of the Principal Ports the local traffic with the various Countries is indicated.

The specification of Sailing and Steam Vessels separately in each account, would prevent a ready view of the several details. There are, therefore, two sets of tables, similarly constructed, the first, the aggregate for sailing and steam vessels, the second, for steam vessels alone.

The enumeration of the Articles of Import and Export has been greatly extended in the new Accounts. The increased number of Articles and their sub-divisions, is in the Imports, from 137 to 453, and in the Exports, from 112 to 347. The Articles are about doubled in number, and the chief increase is in the subdivisions, the specification of which is highly necessary, as in many instances, although all may form but one class of manufactures from one staple material, the varieties often represent large and different branches of trade.

With reference to the present Enumeration of Articles, I am anxious to explain, that the Custom House has only power to obtain particulars of the Articles Imported, according to their description in the Tariff, and of Exports, according to a long recognised list. Subject to these restrictions, the fullest descriptions have been obtained. It is very probable, however, that an improved classification of articles might be framed, and as some of the Chambers of Commerce have already made communications to the Board of Trade upon the subject, I hope to be able in a short time to bring it under the consideration of your Lordships.

Additional Accounts.—There is much new matter in the present Volume which will add to its usefulness. Accounts are given for a new description of trade, (since 1850,) answering to the "Transit" trade of Continental Countries, but which with us is chiefly confined to a transhipment of cargoes in our ports. Other new Accounts, which will probably be very useful for reference, show the Principal Imports and Exports from and to each Foreign Country and British Possession. These Tables are comparative for a period of five years, and will be referred to when the nature and amount of our trade with any particular Country is required, as the Principal Import and Export accounts will be for particular articles of merchandise.

Several "Abstract" Tables, also comparative for five years, are given at the commencement of the volume, for the purpose of affording information, relating to the general results of our Trade and Navigation.

The terms "General Imports," "General Exports," and "General Shipping," have been adopted to distinguish the chief Accounts of the year from the "Abstract Tables" on the same subjects. The "Appendix" of the Shipping contains statements relating to what may be termed the strength of the Mercantile Marine, and the Coasting Trade.

The explanations which I have now afforded will probably help to elucidate the nature and scope of the new Tables of Trade and Navigation, and facilitate reference to them.

I am fully sensible of the importance of an early publication of Official Statistics, and I have every reason to hope that the Volume of the Year's Trade and Navigation Accounts will generally be published before the close of the following year. About nine months are required by the Custom House to obtain and make up the past year's Accounts. The first printing of the new Accounts has occasioned some extra trouble, and has delayed their publication.

With reference to the Miscellaneous and Colonial Statistics, which will, besides the Trade and Navigation Accounts, form separate Volumes, my endeavour will be to compile for the volume of Miscellaneous Statistics, comparative and annual tables of the principal features connected with the movement of the Population, Education, Crime, Poor; the Estimates of, and the actual Public Income and Expenditure, Taxes, Post Office, Railways, Mines, Factories, Prices; in order to form, if possible, a volume of reference to the particulars most commonly wanted on such subjects, and to save a troublesome search through many separate Returns and large volumes of Reports.

The Colonial volume will contain general and commercial Statistics, relating to India and the several Colonies, for which, the returns at present available, do not sufficiently illustrate the state and progress of such important Countries.

The different Statistical Volumes, which I have now alluded to and partly described, will, I believe, prove to be valuable works for Parliamentary and public reference; and the best endeavours will be used in my Department for their prompt and efficient execution.

I have the honour to be,
My Lords,
Your most obedient Servant,

Statistical Department, Board of Trade,

TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE THE LORDS OF THE COMMITTEE OF PRIVY COUNCIL FOR TRADE.

My Lords,

In laying the Second Volume of the Foreign Trade and Navigation of the United Kingdom for the Year 1854, upon the new plan of Accounts, before your Lordships, I beg to advert to the successful accomplishment of the very important work, the Valuation, according to the average Market Prices, of our General Imports, and of our Exports of Foreign and Colonial Merchandise.

Hitherto the only Real Value obtained for our Foreign Commerce has been confined to the Exports of the Produce of the United Kingdom. For the General Imports, and the rest of our Exports, the Official Value could alone be given. It is well known how much the dissatisfaction of the public was increased, year by year, at the continuance of a Value for such important portions of our Foreign Commerce according to Rates fixed so long back as the year 1694.

A Treasury Minute in October 1854 directed the Commissioners of Customs to introduce a system, by which the Real Values, hitherto wanted, should be computed upon the basis of the actual prices. Mr. Messenger, the Inspector General of Imports and Exports, was charged with this important service; and the new system is commenced in the present Accounts. The average annual Prices fixed for the Valuations are, principally, those of the London and Liverpool Markets. In each place one gentleman was specially employed to obtain prices for the Custom House. Many of the principal Merchants and Brokers were consulted, and also some of the Chambers of Commerce. All the aid applied for at the hands of mercantile gentlemen was most willingly furnished, and often not without considerable trouble.

The Prices used and specified in the Accounts are for the Articles in Bond, including all the Charges of Freight and Landing, but exclusive of the Duties.

The Total Value of our Imports in 1854, as computed by the old and new systems, shows the following comparison:—

Old Official Value - - - -	£124,338,478
New computed Real Value - - -	£152,591,513
Which shows an excess of Real Value of -	£28,253,335 or 22¾ per cent.

Of the Imports from Foreign Countries and British Possessions respectively from Abstract Table No. 6., the same comparison shows:—

	From Foreign Countries.		From British Possessions.
Official Value - -	£93,940,967	- - -	£30,397,511
Real Value - -	£118,439,488	- - -	£34,152,025
An Excess of Real Value of	£24,498,521 or 26 per cent.	- An Excess of Real Value of	£3,754,514 or 13⅓ per cent.

And with respect to the Principal Articles imported in 1854, the variation of the two systems of Value, the following are presented as examples from No. 10. of the Abstract Tables :—

ARTICLES.	NEW REAL VALUE.	OLD OFFICIAL VALUE.
REAL VALUE IN EXCESS :
Wood, Timber, Deals, and Staves	11,062,094	1,812,690
Corn and Flour	21,760,283	10,138,778
Wool	6,499,004	2,722,713
Wine	3,616,369	1,231,362
Butter	2,171,194	698,767
Hemp	2,384,578	1,098,426
Flax Seed and Linseed	2,545,107	835,354
Silk Raw, and Waste	5,403,250	3,433,471
Brandy	1,225,332	399,154
Tallow	2,348,311	792,474
OFFICIAL VALUE IN EXCESS :
Cotton, Raw	20,175,395	28,656,756
„ Manufactures	691,285	1,033,228
Tea	5,540,735	8,579,203
Coffee	1,575,184	4,154,519
Cochineal	424,281	1,735,480
Madder	759,329	1,941,373

The Total Value of our Exports of Foreign and Colonial Produce, by the old and new systems, (from Abstract Table No. 7.,) is,—

Old Official Value	£29,821,656
New Real Value	£18,648,978
The Old Value being in excess by	£11,172,678 or 38 per cent.

The Annual Commercial Volume of the United Kingdom is no longer inferior to those of Foreign Countries as regards a complete system of Real Value; and in one respect our Valuation may be considered as superior to that of other Nations, as it is founded upon Prices varying according to the origin of the Articles imported.

I have the honour to be,
My Lords,
Your most obedient Servant,
A. W. FONBLANQUE.
